Harvey Centre chief heralds the changing dynamics of Harlow's town centre

By William Mata

THE boss of Harlow's most established shopping mall is encouraging shoppers to look past empty shops and focus on the future

Bryan Young, manager of the Harvey Centre, said after suffering lack of investment the New Town is transitioning with more focus on the night time economy and a plan for homes along Broad

He added the number of empty shops in the town was not a reflection of where the centre was at while dismissing a suggestion that Edinburgh Way was now the first choice for shoppers. Data shows the Harvey Centre's footfall increased by 4.25 per cent in February from the previous month which is higher than a national average of -2.7 per cent.

Mr Young said: "The dynamics have changed. We are going to have to change to accommodate it. The footfall is changing.

"It is a journey and we need everybody to embrace the journey. Harlow is at a pivotal point.

COMPLAINTS: Terry Tyler said making ends meet is a constant struggle

Handful of market traders are struggling to make ends meet

'Year has gone from bad to worse with several traders leaving and shops closing'

By William Mata

TRADERS at Harlow Market are upset that their once thriving centrepiece is "being left to rot".

Last week just three stalls were set up on Tuesday in Broad Walk – a far cry from the wide selection residents could once enjoy.

Gavin Tyler, owner of greengrocer stall Tyler's Fruit, said: "This past 12 months has gone from bad to worse with several traders leaving and shops closing down.

"Our fellow traders are disgruntled and feel that advertisements, no promotions, no social media or online presence whatsoever.

"It doesn't have to cost a lot to change this. I hope that issues can be resolved and most importantly people can support their local traders.

"Years ago people would travel for miles to shop in Harlow but now Harlow people travel miles to shop elsewhere" said Gavin

The market is held on Mondays, Tuesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. It moved from Market Square in August 2016 and is administered by Harlow Council's licensing team.

Traders are paying a pitch rental, £2 for electricity and need to pay between £34 and £56 to use a trailer. It costs £21 for the first pitch and £15.50 per day for additional pitches.

Terry Tyler, the brother of Gavin, said traders are now paying a monthly direct debit and are charged for days they are not there. Previously traders could credit card payments and prices.

"We have recently added a home delivery service to our stall to keep with the times but it's a constant struggle.
"Harlow town centre is dying. The effect on our trade is monumental being that we are down towards the worst hit parts.

"If you add rising rent, additional license fees and vaste removal services to our ever growing monthly bill it's not hard to see why the market is strug Denise Fleming, who works on a plant stall, said:

"Not enough people come. I have been here for ten years and it has deteriorated.

"But we are going to keep coming, we have a lot of egular customers."

Harlow Council responded to say the move to Broad Walk aimed to bring in greater footfall.

A spokesman from the authority said: "We ensured last year that the changes would have no financial implications on traders for at least 12

"The changes simply align the market traders with other street traders in Broad Walk and mean each trader must have a street trading licence

"Sadly the days of a thriving market in Market

Square are long gone due to the increase of main stream retailers present in the town centre, the national decline in market trading and changing consumer habits. This is why we had to make the changes in consultation with the traders. The council will continue to look at ways to support market style trading and bring more people into the town

He added: "The council has tried a number of schemes over the years to support the market, including the purchase of new gazebos, providing specialist business support to traders and extending the market into Broad Walk and offering free trading periods to encouraging new traders.

"However, the increase of deep discount retail, internet shopping and diversity amongst super-markets have created difficult trading conditions throughout the market sector.

"Traders have needed to adapt and create flexibility in what they offer appealing to gaps in the consumer market."

Commuters pay more per mile than anywhere else in country Harlow tops the list for bad value for season tickets

By William Mata

COMMUTERS from Harlow Town railway station are paying the country's most expensive season ticket fare per mile travelled. From this year it costs £3,496 for 12 months travel to London Liverpool Street from Harlow, which works out at 39p per mile travelled and is a £64 increase from 2016.

The figures, released by Campaign for Better Transport, place Harlow Town top of the list for bad value for money, ahead of Sev-enoaks and St Albans City.

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, said: "It seems wrong that hard working Harlow tax payers have worse value commutes than any one else in the country.
"This is why I have written to Greater Anglia and the Govern ment minister responsible for rail to see what can be done.

"I hope that now Greater Anglia has been awarded the new contract, they will do everything they can to keep rail fares low."

Outside Harlow Town station rail travellers expressed their displeasure at the cost of using the line.

Little appetite for private security patrols in centre

Business owners and residents say spare funds should go to police

By William Mata

william mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A PRIVATE security firm would be a "negative" influence on Harlow, according to town experts.

A pub manager was one of several to say he did not want to see Harlow follow the lead of Frinton, where hundreds of residents pay a firm to patrol their streets after their nearest police station closed.

AGS Security is funded by 300 people paying £2 a week to drive around Frinto each night between 7pm and 7am as a deterrent to unruly behaviour.

They have no powers and residents still phone 999 in an emergency. The patrol is specifically designed to make residents feel safer at night.

Gary Bellamy, manager of The Greyhound pub in Broadley Road, Harlow, said: "We never get a lot of trouble but if there is any I would rather call the police directly. "If anyone did cause trouble

Walk the walk at midnight in aid of hospice charity's fundraiser

ST Clare Hospice's Midnight Walk, one of Harlow's biggest charity events, is now open for entries.

The 2017 edition of the 5km and 10km event will start on Saturday, July 1, and continue into the early hours of the Sunday.

Neon colours and glow sticks were out at The Water Gardens on Friday, April 21, as the Hastingwood-based hospice officially launched the walk which has the theme 'light up the night'.

Jamie Hooper, St Clare fundraising development manager, said: "Summer is coming, which means the Midnight Walk is returning once again and we are so excited to light up the night for St Clare.

"This year we are aiming to goers and walk, skip and dance until the early hours of the morning." Last year more than 600 walkers set off from the Harvey Centre, walked alongside First Avenue onto Edinburgh Way and back towards town to raise thousands in what is the charity's main fundraiser. St Clare provides specialist palliative care to people with terminal and life-limiting illnesses and relies on donations to meet annual running costs totalling more than £4million.

The Midnight Walk starts at 11pm and will end around 1am. DJs and marshals will give entrants the beats and encouragement needed to make thround the course.

Dave Hartery, operations manager at The Water Gardens, said: "We are delighted to be hosting the St Clare Midnight Walk once again and to be walk once again and to be helping our local hospice's biggest fundraiser. "Every year the Midnight Walk brings such a great atmosphere to Harlow town centre with hundreds of people gathering for a fantastic cause and in memory of their loved ones. The whole event just has such a feel-good factor and The Water Gardens is so proud to support St Clare in hosting this special night." Anyone aged 14 or over can take part. Tickets are now on sale, entry costs £20 per adult aged 16 or over and £10 for children aged 14 and 15. There is also a five for the price of four Could you help charity and give a home to trainee guide dogs?

FANCY helping a charity by walking a cute puppy? Guide Dogs for the Blind might have the voluntary role for you.

Harlow residents are being asked by the organisation to look after a young dog as they receive

Puppy walkers play a vital role in the early socialisation and education of guide dogs. The dogs begin their training at around six weeks and stay with volunteers until they are one.

Then they are transferred to a training centre and learn specialist skills. If the dog is successful it will begin to aid someone who is blind. Occasionally if a dog fails to make the grade it is offered back as a pet to the owner who looked

A spokesman for Guide Dogs for the Blind said: "The aim of puppy walking is to produce a puppy that is socially well behaved, friendly and responsive to the handler.

"It is also important that the puppy is at ease in all environments, including town condi-tions, is relaxed and confident when using all types of transport and learns an acceptable standard of behaviour on the lead."

ONE in six people in Harlow is now self-employed, an analysis of labour figures has revealed. More than 15 per cent of the town work for themselves, which equates to around 7,500 people and is 1,300 more than a decade ago.

Harlow has more self-employed workers then many neighbouring towns and several spoke positively about being their own boss.

Damon Bailey, founder and manager of Bailey Accountancy, said: "It seems to be the way everybody wants to work.

"I do not think it is an isolated figure, it is countrywide. The benefits are that you can control and pay your own taxes.

"I like working for myself as

New academy appoints first head teacher

School is set to open in two years' time

By William Mata

william.mata@hertse

A HEAD teacher has been appointed to lead Harlow's newest school, Sir Frederick Gibberd Academy.

Burnt Mill Academy Trust (BMAT), the group which manages the school, has announced the school will open in September 2019, a year later than originally stated.

A multi-form entry of 240 Year 7 students and 100 Year 12 students will begin the school and sixth form, which will be located on the site of the former Passmores

School in Tendring Road.

This week BMAT has announced Dee Conlon, who is currently deputy head teacher at Burnt Mill Academy, in First Avenue, Harlow, will take the reins as head teacher.

Dedicate

She will become head teacher full time in January 2019 but will now dedicate one day a week to Sir Frederick Gibberd Academy

Mrs Conlon said: "I am thrilled wirs comon said. Tain thrilled to be appointed as the head of school. It is a big challenge to design a brand new school. "From the building itself to the curriculum we are going to offer, every detail needs to be con-sidered carefully to ensure young people attending SFGA receive a world class education.

"We have an excellent team of people working on this project who all share the same vision.

Put hospital in the frame to win a £15,0000 cinema

Your nomination could help Princess Alexandra offer movie medicine

By Martin Ford

martin.ford@hertse

THE Princess Alexandra Hospital could get a state-of-the-art cinema as part of a national competition. Children's wards across the country are being offered the chance to have a space in their facility transformed into a stateof-the-art cinema room, complete with all the latest technology.

Finite Solutions is looking to provide a children's hospital with a cinema room installation worth more than £15,000.

Nominations can be made by visitors, patients, staff or mem-bers of the public for any children's ward, care unit or other facility that would benefit – such as PAH in Harlow.

They should submit a short description of what the new facility could be used for, such as hosting a Disney film marathon, a console gaming tournament or a pyjama party with popcorn, along with an image of the proposed room for the installation, if avail-

The nominated hospitals will then be opened up to an online public vote to decide which facilwill receive the cinema makeover and judged by an expert panel of judges.

The £15,000 cinema system will include a high-definition project or, a 100in widescreen, wall-mounted speakers and subwoofer, a Blu-Ray player, games console, Freeview box and wi-fi router and wall-mounted touch screen control panel.

Simon Mathieson, Finite Solutions' consultancy director, said: "We really wanted to team up with a hospital or care unit to do something positive and fun for a group of deserving young people and the campaign is allowing us to do just that.

Relaxation

"Hospitals typically lack the funding required for such facilities, and we hope to bring fun and relaxation to hospital residents and visitors by installing a fant astic cinema room that everyone can enjoy for many years to come We would invite people across Hertfordshire to nominate their local ward."

The closing date for nominations is 4pm on Friday, May 12. To nominate a hospital, visit

INJURIES: The police car was left on its roof

Officers escape as police car overturns

A POLICE car flipped over onto its roof and two police officers received minor injuries in a crash in Harlow.

Officers pursued a white Volkswagen that allegedly failed to stop after going through a red light in Elizabeth Way at about 11.05pm on Thursday, April 13.

The vehicle stopped in Katherine's Way at about 11.15pm.

A police spokeswoman said: "One police car in collision with the vehicle ended up on its roof. Two police officers suffered minor injuries and did not require hospital treatment."

Police arrested a 20-year-old man from Harlow on suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol, dangerous driving and failing to stop.

ESSEX BUSINESS EXCELLENCE AWARDS²⁰¹⁷

IN ASSOCIATION WITH

Now expect even

ET to relaunch next week, the Essex
Business Excellence
Awards shine the light on businesses across
Essex who have excelled in their industry over the past 12 months.

With the launch of the awards imminent, now is the perfect time for businesses to get ready to enter one or more of the 13 categories on offer, which include the Sales and Marketing Award, Contribution to the Community and the coveted Company of the Year accolade.

Presence

The Essex Business Excellence Awards have held a great presence in the county since their inauguration back in 1997.

But after 19 years of the glittering event, 2017 will see them undergo a few changes to ensure the event continues to shine.

This year will mark the first time the business awards have been in conjunction with Trinity Mirror and top brand and events agency Champions (UK).

Throughout the lead-up to the award ceremony, we will document some of the fantastic sponsors, as they each come on board with sponsorship for one of the 13 categories.

Experts in organising events across the length and breadth of the country, Champions (UK) are fully equipped with imagination and skill and are sure to heighten the overall experience of the awards.

The agency's managing director, Matthew Hayes, said: "We have been organising regional business awards like these around the country for nearly ten years now, and have had the pleasure of watching them all grow into some of the most recognised regional events on the calendar.

"Myself, and everyone at Champions (UK) plc are thrilled to be doing the same for the Essex Business Excellence Awards.

"I am very proud to have an events team who bring a splash of colour, a fantastic line-up of entertainment and some famous faces to every event placed in front of them.

"I am looking forward to breathing a breath of fresh air into these upcoming awards, and I want to encourage as many businesses from the local area to get involved as sponsors or entrants." Although the award ceremony will not take place until November, preparations are already well underway with colour schemes chosen and the two event hosts confirmed.

This year comedian and TV presenter Mark Dolan and fellow TV presenter Lucy Nicholls will work seamlessly together, guiding the audience through the evening and adding to the overall enjoyment of the evening

Sponsorship

Sponsorship of the awards is intrinsic to not only ensuring the awards remain a prominent part of Essex's business life, but for maintaining a great relationship with fellow businesses in the region. Category sponsorship brings with it a wide range of benefits, including great exposure for your own businesse.

Entries open for the awards on Wednesday, May 10 so make sure you don't miss out.

YOU ARE NOT ALONE:

Cruse Bereavement Care helps those who have lost a loved one

Helping you through the hardest times Cruse bereavement care

Cruse is a national charity that helps over 100,000 people every year, when they experience a death of someone close.

Experiencing Bereavement

When someone dies, it can be devastating. People can feel a great sense of loss and aloneness. For others there is anger and a feeling of guilt, wishing they could have done something, said something, or spent more time with the person whilst they were alive. For some, there is a feeling of numbness and shock, as though they feel nothing, and the whole world can feel like it is happening around them. Still yet more feel the need to "carry on" and take care of things. Each bereavement can be different for each person.

Supporting Yourself

One of the most helpful things is to talk about the person who has died, and your relationship with them. Choosing someone who feels safe to talk with is important – they can be a family member, friend, GP, faith/spiritual adviser or a support organisation.

It is important to look after yourself and try to get enough rest, even is sleep is difficult. Telling people close to you what you need is also important. It is not a sign of weakness to need help, and keeping emotions bottled up and isolating yourself can lead to more problems. Talking with those you trust can be a lifeline.

Helping Someone Bereaved

People who have been bereaved may simply want to talk about the person who has died. Listening is often the most helpful thing that you can do, giving someone time and space to grieve. Offering practical help when needed can also be very helpful, as sometimes people will not want to talk about how they are feeling. Knowing you are there for them will matter. There is no time limit to grief and particular anniversaries can be hard for someone. Being there for when the bereaved person needs you most can be really helpful.

Toddlers raised over £1.400

TODDLERS in Harlow raised £1405.10 for Barnardo's, the UK's oldest and largest children's charity, during last summer's animal themed Big Toddle. Children dressed up as animals such as tigers and giraffes and took part in a half mile walk to raise money for vulnerable children.

Nurseries and parents are now signing up to take part in this year's Big Toddle, which runs from June 19 to 25 and has the theme of 'colours'. The Big Toddle is marking its 20th anniversary this year by teaming up with Teletubbies, which is also celebrating its 20th anniversary. Since 1997, the Big Toddle has raised £14.5 million.

The antics of Tinky Winky, Dipsy, Laa-Laa and Po have featured in more than 400 episodes of the popular TV programme and entertained children in more than 120 countries

Barnardo's South-East and Anglia Regional Director, Jonathan Whalley, said: "A huge thank you to everyone who will be taking part in this year's Big

"Last year the event raised almost £600,000 in total which is helping to transform the lives of the most vulnerable children in the UK. "I am excited Barnardo's has teamed up with the Teletubbies some of the most popular characters in TV history, for this year's event. Both will be celebrating their 20th anniversary so it promises to be a fantastic party."

Not Teflon Bob again

IT CANNOT be stated enough, in the run up to the general election, that Robert Halfon's repeated mantra of the Conservatives being the Workers' Party is an absolute lie. 200 years promoting the exploitation of working people and legislation protecting the wealth of the rich is all the evidence one needs to out this falsehood.

Somehow this great town has elected "Teflon Bob" to Parliament as its representative, twice... let's not make it three

■ HARVEY CENTRE

Kids enjoyed farm day fun

THIS Easter, The Harvey Centre embraced the spirit of spring with a selection of farm-themed free events, between 11am and 4pm on Saturday, April 15.

During the event, children had the opportunity to meet an array of real farm animals including a donkey, sheep, goat, chickens, ducks, rabbits and a dog, in the centre's special petting farm. They had the chance to pet and stroke the animals – all supervised by the farmer himself. Furthermore they could let their enquiring minds run wild and ask any questions that popped into their heads, so the whole experience was both fun and educational.

Fully embracing the countryside theme, The Harvey Centre also ran a special kid's workshop where children could meet 'Farmer Frankie' and her cheeky farmyard helper 'Matilda muddy-boots' as they embarked upon a big day at work. During the event, children were invited to jump into the pig pen for some oinky games, put their boulder lifting skills to the test on the little tractor track and hook a duck in the duck pond. Finally kids had some fun in the potato patch! Here they picked their prize potato off the farm and turned it into a potato baby, complete with clothes and a birth certificate to take home!

No Easter event is complete without chocolate, so there were also free giveaways throughout the day, plus face painting and a special appearance by Harvey the Hippo.

BOWLS

All ages can come and try

THE Griffin Bowls Club, based behind the Latton Bush Centre. achieved Clubmark status last year and is the first bowls club in Essex to receive this award for lawn bowls and short mat bowls. The members are now working hard to become a bowls club for the whole community by making partnerships with local schools and cub packs.

Sixty-four pupils from St
Mark's School have visited the bowls club in four groups for six weeks of coaching for short mat bowls this spring.

Coaches John Barwick, Jim
Jordan and Bill Baker, with the help of several other club members, have guided the pupils from Years 8 and 9 from complete beginners to a group of youngsters capable of playing

It has been a really successful venture and Ray Flowers, Head of PE, has said that it has been a brilliant, confidence boosting experience for the students.

In another venture, The Griffin have entertained cubs from 1st Kingsmoor and 16th Harlow packs for two hours on Saturday mornings. The same coaches and helpers at The Griffin have been involved, and it is hoped that some of the cubs will be successful in attaining badge – Learn a New Sport. Trevor Chappell, the Scout Leader has remarked on the dedication of the club coaches and helpers, and the enthusiasm this has generated within the

There are plans already in place to bring the students and the cubs to the club in the summer to play outside. The Griffin is ideally placed as they have two excellent greens, with plenty of room for everyone. There are also discussions taking place with local disabled groups and with Age UK Dementia, with the aim of making partnerships here too.

Danny Doyle, Griffin Club Chairman, said "The club are working hard to achieve their aims, and with one green already upgraded this spring, the whole club is looking forward to an exciting outdoor season.

We are always looking for new members, whatever their age or ability, and if anyone feels like having a go, we have open days on May 1 and May 29, or you can come on a Wednesday evening

FOREIGN AID

Proud of UK saving lives

BRITAIN keeps its promises, particularly to those most in need. For 10 years, our commitment to spend 0.7 per cent of our national income on aid has been testament to that, and featured in all the major political party manifestos running up to the last general election.

I am proud of the UK's history of providing life-saving aid to the world's most vulnerable children. As the first major economy to reach this spending target, the UK has shown how a transparent, independent and accountable approach to aid funding can change the world.

It is the right thing to do, and it shows the world that we are bigger than just ourselves Immunising millions of children against preventable diseases makes us a bigger Britain. Supporting our doctors and nurses to lead the fight against ebola makes us a bigger Britain. Creating jobs and trade opportunities in developing countries makes us a bigger Britain.

This election must be an opportunity for all parties to reaffirm that commitment. We are big enough to help people both at home and abroad. Let us all call on our future politicians to show their commitment to the most vulnerable by protecting

TAXATION

We must pay for our services

CALLS for a low-tax society are always a potential vote winner and Robert Halfon knows it. It's often a knee-ierk reaction to complain at one's deductions at the end of the week or month. However demands for deductions in direct taxation are deeply flawed.

The development of society is determined by the quality of its health and social care, education, housing and public services – all such services depend on money raised by taxation to provide the best services freed from the compulsion to put profit and shareholder dividends ahead of everything else. I'm not arguing that public services should be wasteful, indeed, they have to be effectively and efficiently run but not for maximum profit margins. By definition private services seek to turn significant profits this is perverse and inappropriate for services that are essential for people's health, well-being, education and development.

The wealthy benefit from indirect taxation (20 per cent VAT, for example, impacts on a rich person's expenditure less than on everyone else's) and a two per cent reduction in income tax will yield a far greater saving for someone on £250,000 pa than for someone on £25,000.

Poorer public services impact less on the rich because they can invest in private care plans and send their children to private schools – they can even purchase private security. For most of us, though, a fair rate of reasonable taxation is essential for the services that we rightly demand. I would go as far as to say that those who earn the most should be contributing significantly more at a higher rate.

Unlike Robert Halfon and his Conservative Party I support a fair society – not an elitist and selfish one.

GOFEST will be returning to Surrey Sports Park in Guildford, Surrey, for the third year at the end of

The two-day festival of sport, dance and fitness, encourages and welcomes thousands of families from across the south of England to join in the fitness fun.

Held over the weekend of May 28 and 29. GoFest is all about choice and an opportunity for all abilities and ages to receive family friendly coaching in small groups and have a go at a huge variety of sports, dance classes and healthy activities.

From archery to zumba classes. most of the sports coaching sessions and classes are 30-45 minutes tasters and they start every hour, leaving you 15 minutes to move to the next one.

The inaugural event in 2015 saw the likes of football legend Kevin Keegan and global athlete Roger Black take part in the weekend of Paul Farris, GoFest CEO, said: "It's an exciting time having just released our full schedule of activities for GoFest South.

"I'm pretty sure people who are new to GoFest will be pleasantly surprised and very excited at just how much there is to 'have a go at. After two very successful years and some incredible feedback, we are delighted to be back at Surrey Sports Park in Guildford again over the bank holiday weekend.

'We are working with a huge number of brilliant partners to unite families through activity and encourage all ages to become more active by offering so much choice in one location over one

Oscar Isaac stars in The Promise

THE PROMISE (12A) ★★★★★

The extermination of an estimated 1.5 million Armenians at the hands of the Ottoman Empire, which Turkey has repeatedly refused to acknowledge as genocide, provides a turbulent backdrop to Terry George's earnest period romance.

Opening in the splendour of 1914 Anatolia, The Promise contrives a love triangle between two Armenians and an American as the prism through which to refract sickening images of barbarism during the First World War.

Writer-director George, who was Oscar nominated for his riveting 2004 picture Hotel Rwanda, conjures shocking tableaux like a river bed cluttered with dozens of lifeless men, women and children, their blood seeping into the fast-moving waters.

the fast-moving waters.
The scope of George's vision, with its panoramic vistas, expertly choreographed riots and battle scenes on perilous mountain terrain, recalls sweeping 1960s epics such as Doctor Zhivago, which captured the cost of war through the eyes of lovers caught in the crossfire.

The Promise doesn't possess the emotional depth of David Lean's masterpiece, and the 133-minute running time feels padded, but there are moments of heart-wrenching beauty and brutality concealed within the pedestrian narrative

Mikael Boghosian (Oscar Isaac) is an apothecary in the village of Sirun and he yearns to study medicine in Constantinople.

Unable to fund the three-year course himself, Mikael agrees to marry his neighbour's daughter Maral (Angela Sarafyan) in exchange for a dowry of 400 gold coins that will finance studies in the capital.

Separated from his bride-to-be, Mikael

Separated from his bride-to-be, Mikael befriends Emre Ogan (Marwan Kenzari), whose father is a powerful figure in the Turkish military, and he falls head over heels in love with his uncle's house guest, Ana Khesarian (Charlotte Le Bon), a fellow Armenian.

Unfortunately, Mikael is already promised to Maral and Ana has a partner, an American journalist called Chris Myers (Christian Bale), who is reporting on escalating tensions in Turkey for the Associated Press

Turkey for the Associated Press.
Eventually Mikael returns home to the mountains to fulfil his marital pledge and forget about Apa.

forget about Ana.

The Promise is a sluggish rifle through pages of disputed recent history, which aligns itself with the Armenians as they search for an escape from their war-ravaged nation.

Isaac and Le Bon catalyse simmering screen chemistry, while Bale casually embodies a western observer with a conscience, who defiantly defends his actions: "Without reporters, the Armenian people would disappear, and no one would know."

Through the lens of George's picture, one harrowing version of events comes into focus, years slowly.

Zoe Saldana, Karen Gillan, Chris Pratt and Dave Bautista are back in Guardians Of The Galaxy Vol. 2

Bigger and better

GUARDIANS OF THE GALAXY VOL. 2 (12A)

rodigal sons with tortured family histories repeatedly emerge from the panels of comic books with superhero destinies.

Kal-Eİ is driven to protect Metropolis by the loss of his home planet Krypton, the murders of Thomas and Martha Wayne on the streets of Gotham compel master Bruce to don the cowl of rough justice, orphan Peter Parker web-slings with a vengeance after his Uncle Ben is slain, and Tony Stark inherits the means to fashion Iron Man's armoury when his parents perish in a car accident.

In Guardians Of The Galaxy Vol. 2, wisecracking thief-for-hire Peter Quill (Chris Pratt) learns the agonising truth about his twisted lineage to a 1970s-heavy soundtrack including – pointedly – Father And Son by Cat Stevens.

Bigger by eight minutes and marginally better than its supremely entertaining predecessor, writer-director James Gunn's rollicking sequel blends a lip-smacking cocktail of irreverent humour, heart-tugging sentiment and spectacular action sequences.

Affectionate pop culture nods to Knight Rider, Cheers and Pac-Man jive enthusiastically next to running gags about male pride and human frailty, plus teasing quips at the expense of ill-tempered racoon Rocket (voiced by Bradley Cooper), who is dismissed as a "trash panda" and "triangle-faced monkey".

In the first film, Peter Quill (Pratt) escaped the clutches of space pirate Yondu (Michael Rooker) to galvanise a motley crew of mercenaries comprising green-skinned assassin Gamora (Zoe Saldana), vengeance-seeking warrior Drax (Dave Bautista), genetically engineered racoon Rocket (Cooper) and cute tree-like sidekick Groot (voiced by Vin Diesel).

For the sequel's tongue-in-cheek opening salvo, expertly choreographed to ELO's foot-stomping anthem Mr Blue Sky, the Guardians face a razor-toothed beast that intends to steal the Anulax Batteries belonging to high priestess Ayesha (Elizabeth Debicki) and her Sovereign people.

As a reward for laser-blasting bravery, the snarky heroes take delivery of a prisoner: Gamora's estranged sister, Nebula (Karen Gillan), who suffered grievously at the hands of their tyrannical father, Thanos. Soon after, The Guardians

Soon after, The Guardians encounter an omnipotent being, Ego (Kurt Russell), who claims to be Peter's missing father. "If he ends up being evil, we'll just kill him," Gamora says.

Guardians Of The Galaxy Vol. 2 confidently spices a familiar brew with sinewy subplots.

Pratt and Saldana turn up their heat on the "unspoken thing" between their comrades, while Bautista's hilariously literal hulk offers Peter the benefit of his romantic wisdom: "You just need to find a woman, who is pathetic like you."

Computer-generated double-act Rocket and Baby Groot scene-steal with aplomb, enriched with Cooper and Diesel's vocal performances.

Not everything is golden: an emotional crescendo cheekily borrows from a recent Disney animation and Star Trek, and the dizzying final showdown has been cast, disappointingly, in the same special effects-heavy mould as The Avengers and Captain America. The sequel's end credits are

The sequel's end credits are peppered with cute surprises, including leading cast shaking their things and five additional scenes.

These are predominantly throwaway comic wheezes, except for a third bite-size morsel, which explicitly heralds the birth of an iconic character to fling magical mayhem when the Guardians Of The Galaxy return a few years hence.

METHOD 1. Set the oven to the highest setting. Pop the kettle on. On buying your belly, have your butcher remove it from the bone. Keep the bone and bring it home. Also, have them remove the skin, having first scored it in a criss-cross fashion. 2. Place the skin in the sink and pour boiling water over it. Carefully dry the skin thoroughly. 3. Rub a tablespoon of oil and then the sea salt into the scored flesh. Place the skin in an oiled roasting tin and put in the oven to make crackling. Remove after 30 minutes and allow to cool. however - he thought the idea "a bit self-regarding" - though he is "On a Friday night, the default thing I do for the people I love is roast chicken, dauphinoise potatoes and a crunchy green salad with French dressing, and a nice bottle of Chardonnay," he muses. "I like doing braised belly pork in cider, preferably 3Cs cider - which is the cider I make.

"I'm quite good at roast potatoes, especially if they're a bit burnt at the edges." After 17 years in food journalism, William who lives in Northamptonshire and has just been shortlisted for a Fortnum & Mason Food and Drink Award for his non-fiction work, Eggs Or Anarchy - has developed a few dietary guidelines, including eating less as the day goes on, cycling everywhere and avoiding food trends.

"I eat when I'm hungry and what looks good, and I try and eat widely – and I certainly eat very greedily," he says.

Fortunately, greediness is essential if you're filming MasterChef; William and his fellow critics are served any number of two-course meals back-to-back by anxious contestants.

"You get a whole grown-up portion - if you like it, you eat all of it." William explains.

When asked what fascinates him about his field, William is irrepressibly passionate.

Food is about politics, it's about history, culture; it's about entertaining, it's about love, it's about survival, it's about poverty. it's about pleasure, hedonism, it's about staying sober, it's about getting drunk.

"It's a subject that covers every aspect of human life.

Cheers to that. Inspired to reacquaint yourself with proper British cooking? Try one of these three recipes. ■ The Really Quite Good British Cookbook, edited by William Sitwell, photography by Lizzie Mayson, is published in hardback by Nourish, £25.

I JUMP through scientific hoops to decide what to share with you in this world of words sitting below the lovely recipes above me. Hello? Come back, I'm here you can think about cooking later.

This week the science was easy; I looked at my notes and saw three Australian shiraz wines jump out like it was planned. ■ Andrew Peace Shiraz (£5.29, the Co-op,14% abv): This has a sneaky bit of tempranillo in the blend which is at the heart of wines from Rioja, so it might give you a heads-up about this black fruitcherry-pepper compote created by one of the largest family owned wineries in Australia. I went back to this a day after opening and poured into a

really big swirly glass and by then it had opened up to deliver a decent fruity number on the nose; it's a little bit see-through, not as deep and burly as my third wine. I'd like more fruit flavours in the mouth but for just over a fiver on a Tuesday night (which it is, as I write) then what's not to like.

■ Grant Burge Benchmark Shiraz 2014 (£7.25, winesociety.com, 14.5% abv):
Well it kind of says it on the vin the winemakers are wanting to set the benchmark for good

Aussie wines. Like most red wines, this has gone through another fermentation after the alcoholic fermentation, called the ppa Middleton is one of the contributors

malolactic fermentation. It can drive you to drink understanding it, but just know that it means the wine is softer and creamier as a result. There's a nose of cherries and spice with a sneak of vanilla weaving in and out; in the mouth the spice takes over from the fruit flavours and if you like your reds to give you a spicy wake-up call then consider the job done. ■ Lot 17 Wrattonbully Shiraz

2015 (£9.99, Aldi,14.5% abv): This is deep and brooding like a prince from a Game of Thrones kingdom; there isn't a dragon in sight but it does let out a roar. It's a friendly dragon though and the prince is one you'd want to cuddle all night. Oh dear I think I'm losing it! The nose on this deep-coloured wine from Aldi's consistently good Lot range is full of lush forest fruits and fresh squeezes of blackcurrant juice with a shake of spice;

the dark fruit flavour sparks and dapples with spice. I'd like the fruit flavours to last a bit longer and be as moreish as the aromas but I'm being picky. I was very, very happy with this dark prince from Oz.

■ THIS month Maiestic has launched a range of wines, Majestic Loves, which I'm told has won a seal of approval with the Great British public.

More than 1.000 blind tasting reviews of supermarket wines below £6 were collected and over 65% of people preferred the new

Majestic Loves wines. I've tried a couple. The Romanian Majestic Loves Pinot Prigio 2016, left, and the Italian red Majestic Loves Montepulciano d'Abrazzo 2015, right, are easydrinking fruitful wines. If you're planning a party or a barbecue then they'd keep your guests happy. Both are £5.99 in a buy six deal or £6.99 each - and come in at 12% abv.

INGREDIENTS

250g fresh young nettle tops (foraged from the garden or local park) 25a butter 2tbsp olive oil 2x150g pollack fillet steaks 1 small bunch wild garlic shredded (foraged from the garden, local park. hedgerows and roadside - or use 1 clove, crushed) 2 eggs 2 slices sourdough or good-quality country bread, toasted

METHOD

Salt and pepper

1. Wash the nettles in plenty of fresh water. Remove any tougher lower stalks. Drop the nettles into a saucepan of salted, boiling water and simmer for two to three minutes, until tender, then drain really well.

2. Return the nettles to the pan, add half the butter and one tablespoon of the olive oil. Season well with salt and pepper, stir and then cover and keep warm.

INGREDIENTS

For the blackcurrant layer:

250g blackcurrants A squeeze of lemon juice Un to 100g caster sugar 50ml water

For the chocolate layer:

25g cocoa powder 50g caster sugar 100ml water

For the cream/yoghurt layer:

200ml double cream 200ml plain full-fat yoghurt 2tbsp caster sugar

To finish: 50g skinned hazelnuts 1tbsp Demerara sugar

METHOD 1. Put the blackcurrants in a saucepan with 50ml water. Bring to a simmer and cook for a few minutes, stirring once or twice, until the fruit has broken down and you have a chunky, juicy mix. 2. Push this through a sieve to remove the currant skins and seeds. Add the lemon juice to the warm purée, then sweeten it by stirring in caster sugar. Start by adding 50g, then stir in more until the purée is sweet but still tastes fruity and fresh. Leave to cool and then chill.

WE WIL ROCK YOU

The show is still going on for Queen legend Brian May since he joined forces with the first lady of the West End. MARION McMULLEN chats to the duo

OCK guitarist Brian May was behind some of Queen's greatest hits, but says it is unlikely he would still be writing today if not for performer Kerry Ellis. "I wrote for Freddie (Mercury) all those years, but I don't really think of myself as a songwriter," he says. "I love writing stuff for Kerry though. I'm not sure I would still be writing if not for her."

The duo brought out the Anthems album five years ago, have performed in the UK and widely toured Italy and Eastern Europe.

Along the way they have also appeared at the Montreux Jazz Festival, the San Remo Festival and a packed opera crossover extravaganza in Italy's Arena di Verona

They have just brought out new studio album Golden Days, which features a mix of original compositions and new rock arrangements of some of their favourite songs.

It marks a musical partnership that dates back 13 years and Brian still remembers the first time he heard Kerry sing, when she understudied Martine McCutcheon as Eliza Doolittle in the London production of My Fair Lady.

He says: "I will never forget when Kerry later came along to the audition for our musical We Will Rock You.

'We auditioned more than a thousand people I had already seen Kerry doing My Fair Lady and when she started singing we were just open-mouthed. We went on to audition other people, but there was no doubt we had to hire her."

Kerry went on to star as Meat in We Will Rock You and also vividly remembers the audition.

She laughs: "My memory is very different. I was quite young and I remember coming in and there being a lot of people. There was Brian, Roger Taylor, Ben Elton, Arlene Phillips, video cameras filming. I remember it being quite an event.

"I think I was young enough to not have the expectations that I have now of going into an audition. I saw it as a challenge and exciting as opposed to being daunted by it.

Kerry has gone on to appear in musicals like Miss Saigon, Les Miserables, Wicked, Oliver! Chess and is currently touring the UK playing Alice in new musical Wonderland, based on writer Lewis Carroll's famous

She also has two young children, aged three and 18 months, and says fitting in studio time to record new album Golden Days has been challenging.

"I get up pretty early these days," chuckles the 37-year-old, "and I drink a lot of coffee. It is a struggle with our schedules. I am doing shows and concerts and Brian is busy with all the things he does, so when we are in the recording studio it is precious time and we are very focussed.

The new album includes two songs dedicated to their work on behalf of animals, a radical rearrange-ment of the classic Born Free, a new version of Amazing Grace, Story Of A Heart by Abba's Bjorn Ulvaeus and Benny Andersson and Parisienne Walkways, a tribute

Brian and Kerry covered Parisienne Walkways as a tribute to late Skid Row and Thin Lizzy guitarist Gary Moore, left to guitar virtuoso Gary Moore who died in

'This album is a true collaboration between Kerry and myself," says Brian. "Five years ago Anthems was the result of me producing an exciting new artist - Kerry Ellis. This record has both our names on it and breaks new ground. We produced ourselves together as a team. I feel confident it's the best thing we've done and a testament to 13 years of belief. It also happens to feature Britain's most beautiful voice!

Brian will also be appearing at the Hay Festival later this year to speak about a new book and is planning for a Queen tour.

"It takes a year in advance to plan a tour," says Brian, who turns 70 later this year. "We have to plan a long way ahead for the rigs, light and videos. "No matter what else I do Queen is always there in the background and I am grateful it's there. I am long past those days when I thought people would no longer be interested in Queen anymore.

■ Golden Days by Brian May and Kerry Ellis is out now on Sony Music.

SHERYL CROW - BE MYSELF

ALTHOUGH this is a return to form for Crow after 2013's country-based and too-cosy Feels Like Home, it's an odd pastiche of her 1990s work.

Be Myself would be a pretty good album if it wasn't trying so hard to be Sheryl Crow c1996, but it does still have some good tracks, with the cute and catchy Grow Up standing out as the most original song on offer here. Definitely worth listening to, though, if you're in need of a new shot of Sheryl Crow.

HAYSEED DIXIE - FREE YOUR MIND AND YOUR GRASS WILL FOLLOW

SELF-STYLED Grass Rock cover band are back. In 2000,

they hit the music scene with AC/DC covers and have since added some stellar songs including Bohemian Rhapsody (Killer Grass) and Motorhead's Ace of Spades (Let There Be Rockgrass).

Free Your Mind And Your Grass Will Follow has their signature bluegrass sound, however, there is definitely more of a pop sound. Ball Of Confusion and Black Or White stand out but there is something comforting about hearing Black Or White stripped back, Elvis Costello's Oliver's Army and Bob Marley's Buffalo Soldier are even more leftfield and equally enjoyable. This is a great fun album for the summer months.

MAXIMO PARK - RISK TO EXIST

IN the mid-to-late 2000s, Maximo Park knew how to write skittering, buzzing alt-indie rock. They could make you dance and roll your head around frantically. Twelve years since their brilliant debut record, A Certain Trigger, and the Newcastle four-piece, still led by the ever distinctive vocals of Paul Smith, have changed little, which is a tad disappointing.

Get High (No, I Don't) is senselessly shouty, What Equals Love? is pleasingly funky, while The Reason I Am Here clangs and jars. A mixed bag, but they just about get away with it.

TEXAS - JUMP ON BOARD

★★★★ A CELEBRATION of making music for over a quarter of a century, listeners are invited to "jump on board", in sync with the laid-back vibe of the album.

Lead singer Sharleen Spiteri cuts loose, projecting nothing but positive messages through her sincere lyrics. It's an open minded album, reflecting on years of heartaches, hardships and general highs and lows. The album features 10 tracks combining rock, soul, new country and electro-póp. Opener Let's Work It Out, an upbeat, dance track accompanied by a guitar rhythm, sets a tone which reverberates throughout the album. In contrast to the upbeat rhythm of For Everything and Tell That Girl, there are also more intense, eerier soundtracks from Can't Control to Sending A Message.

orking from home is becoming increasingly fashionable these days. Sadly, the same cannot be said for all home offices.

Often, home workers will make do with converting the family dining table into a makeshift office, which is all well and good if it's a one-off but, if working from home is a regular occurrence, a more permanent space is most definitely needed.

However if your house is already bulging at the seams, finding a dedicated area can be challenging. So it's time to get creative.

DE-CLUTTER

Spring is the perfect time to have a clear out. Put some serious time aside for every room in the home and empty each nook and cranny, getting rid of any items you don't want. As well as ridding your home of unwanted clutter, a good clear out is a fantastic way to see exactly how much space you could utilise for your new

FIND YOUR SPACE

Spare bedrooms, a loft or even a shed all make fantastic home offices. But for those without the luxury of these additional spaces, don't despair. Your epic declutter may have revealed some dead space in your home.

With a little bit of creativity, the area under the stairs or a small alcove could be become the perfect home office. Opt for a fold down desk that can be stowed when not in use and a chair that will complement the existing décor and voila, your own dedicated workspace.

The same goes in the master bedroom. But tread carefully, while it may be ideal for a bijou home study, do you really want to roll over in bed and see your to-do list?

If budget and space allow, invest in a floor-to-ceiling cupboard and use the shelves as your desk and storage.

Buy a gorgeous chair that will look great in the bedroom, and keep the cupboard doors firmly closed at night to ensure the work/life balance stays in

DESK JOB

Everyone's job is different and therefore, so are everyone's requirements. However, the one thing most of us will need is a desk.

A good work desk needs to be ergonomically designed to ensure you have adequate leg room for long periods of sitting. It also needs to be big enough for all the tools of your trade: paperwork, a laptop and all the other paraphernalia we need to do our jobs.

But after that, the choice is yours. Personally, I would invest some time sourcing the perfect piece that complements the existing style.

Then, when it's not in use, it will tie seamlessly into the rest of the home.

ARE YOU SITTING COMFORTABLY?

If you thought a decent desk is important, that pales into insignificance when it comes to a good office chair. Make sure yours is adjustable with plenty of lumbar support to keep back pain at bay.

Armrests and headrests are also nice to have for additional comfort.

Looks should come a close second to functionality but the plethora of office furniture on the market now means there are some gorgeous office chairs that will look great and keep your health in check.

Where possible, ensure your home office gets plenty of natural daylight to keep productivity and creativity on a high

It will also help brighten your mood, ensuring even the most tiresome tasks get ticked off the to-do list.

Unfortunately, natural light lacks a little in the winter months so your office will need a little help in the illumination stakes.

Almost every office I can think of has at least one plant in it; and it's not there to simply look good. Plants in the workspace are said to increase productivity and keep stress at bay. So make sure your home office has at least one.

The great thing about plants is they quite literally come in all shapes and sizes so no matter how unusual. minute or quirky your office, you'll always find one to fit.

What should you pay close attention to and what should you ianore when viewing a new-build home? Here is Which?'s guide

SHOW home is an example property on a new-build development, designed and decorated to entice buyers. It'll often double up as a $marketing\,suite, from\,where\,other$

If you're considering buying a new home off-plan, the show home can play a key role in helping you visualise what you'll be purchasing.

Developers know this, and they'll happily use the tricks of the trade to raise your interest. With careful research and a level-headed mindset, however, it's possible to see past the high-end fittings and clever lighting, and work out whether it really is your ideal home.

WHAT RESEARCH SHOULD I DO FIRST?

IT'S important to fully research the development in advance and to think carefully about what you want from your new home.

The show home is only a snapshot of the development. You'll need to think about the location, access and local amenities, and look into the developer's track record.

Research whether the developer has built any other homes nearby, and find out if they were built on time and to a good standard.

Start by preparing a list of what you're looking for. For example, how many bedrooms do you require, is a garden top of your wish list, is car parking essential?

If possible, invite a friend or family member to visit the development with you. Somebody who isn't involved in the process might notice things you overlook

WHAT SHOULD I LOOK FOR WHEN I VISIT A SHOW HOME?

IF you're considering buying a property that hasn't been built yet (off-plan), you need to find out how it will differ from the show home.

Try not to think too much about how the show home is decorated and kitted out. If all you remember after viewing a show home is the designer sofa and stylish light fittings, then you've been distracted.

Which?

Look closely at the home itself: is it well-built, is the layout logical, and could you imagine living in this sort

Walk around the building site and try to visualise how the development will look once completed.

SPOT THE TRICKS OF THE TRADE

WHEN viewing a show home, keeping an eye out for optical illusions might not be top of your list but it should be.

Bear the following in mind: Remember that show homes are dressed by expert interior designers who are trained in optimising space in other words, the home might look much bigger than it actually is. Living rooms often have small furniture, bedrooms might only contain a bed and bedside table, and glass furniture, mirrors and constant lighting might be used to create an illusion of natural light. Some features in a show home might not be included in the standard specification. Boiling water taps, designer worktops and high-end lighting could all add to the price.

Show homes often have the best plot on the development, so there's a chance that the spacious landscaped garden you're shown on your viewing could be a turfed postage stamp on the home you buy.

SHOULD I BUY A SHOW HOME?

show home once they've finished using it for marketing purposes. The idea of buying a show home divides opinion, but for the right price (and with the right extras thrown in), it could be a smart move. Here are the pros and cons:

THE ADVANTAGES

- You can fully inspect the finished home before buying it.
- The development will be close to completion, so you won't have to live on a building site for too long.
- Show homes usually have upgraded fixtures and fittings that aren't on the standard homes.
- You could benefit from the best plot and a landscaped garden
- You might be able to get the furniture thrown in.

- ...AND THE DISADVANTAGES
 YOU could be overpaying for premium fixtures and fittings, and you can't personalise these.
- A show home is likely to have experienced plenty of wear and tear by the time it's sold, so will need a thorough snagging survey.
- Items in show homes sometimes get taken away and used in other homes on the development - so what you see on your viewing may not be what you get when you move
- You won't be able to benefit from on-site aftercare.
- Appliances will be used rather than new, and their warranties might have expired.
- THE show home is often located next to the marketing suite car park, which developers will sometimes build a house on at the end of the project, so you could face disruption after moving in.

or The Great Gatsby starring Leonardo DiCaprio, then you'll know they are the visions of mercurial Australian director Baz Luhrmann.

Recognised for his sumptuous production values, unique visual style and for depicting worlds that are both glamorous and haunting in films such as Strictly Ballroom and Romeo & Juliet, Luhrmann also recently ventured into TV with a Netflix series.

Broadcast last year, The Get Down is a musical history of the New York hip hop scene during the 1970s. Luhrmann has also been dabbling with interior design at a hotel overlooking Florida's Miami Beach. There he's designed the interiors of 10 penthouse residences within its two top floors.

His Faena Hotel apartments offer owners cinematic views of the azure coast and interiors worthy of a Moulin Rouge set. Suffice to say red velvet and leopard skin are much in evidence

The hotel, which used to be called The Saxony and was a favourite of the Rat Pack during the 1960s, now "draws from this DNA" says Luhrmann, describing his designs for the hotel as a "mythical utopia that enthrals and transforms all who come"

You'll need a bit more than the price of a cinema ticket to see his latest production.

Prices for the apartments start at $2.4 million or, if you just want to book in for a holiday at the hotel, $20,000 a night.

Flat where Garbo went to be alone reta Garbo was one of Hollywood's greatest enigmas. During the 1920s and 30s the Swedish born actress made 28 films before retiring aged just 36.

Garbo's sultry looks, severe demeanour and classical beauty helped make her one of the greatest actresses of the period straddling both silent films and 'talkies'.

She jilted her only serious partner and left him waiting at the altar, becoming most famous for her line 'I want to be alone" from the 1932 film Grand Hotel, which became her catchphrase.

She retired in 1941. Garbo had squirrelled away a $32 million fortune partly by being famously frugal and, after buying an apart-ment in Manhattan in 1950, used it as her home for the rest of her life. Apart from occasional travel over-seas and daily walks in the city, Garbo kept in touch with her small ring of friends, and became close pals with her housekeeper.

She never married or had any children and died in 1990 aged 84. Since then the flat has remained in the family, until now. It's been put on the market with an asking price of $5.95 million and is within The Campanile, a 14-storey co-op building.

Garbo's former flat covers the whole of the fifth floor. The property retains many of her interior decor choices, including silk on the walls in the master bedroom. It also has two further bedrooms and two reception rooms

CANNES YOU AFFORD FILM FESTIVAL DIGS?

May brings this year's Cannes Film Festival where for a brief few days the stars of Hollywood will descend on this seaside city on the Cote d'Azur.

The harbour will be thrumming with super yachts, while the world's film directors and actors pack its restaurants.

2017 is special - it's the 70th gathering since the festival began in 1947, and British entrants include Vanessa Redgrave directing her first film - Sea Sorrow starring Ralph Fiennes and Emma Thompson.

With so many wealthy people in town, competition for places to stay is intense.

Most of the spare apartments are already gone. So, it's time to spend big or further afield if you've left it this late. The prices are shocking, starting at a few thousand for a decent flat to &40,000 for a large house with sea views. Local English agent Beauchamp Estates (+33 493 94 45 45) is one of the agents to approach.

YOUR GARDEN With Dairmuid Gavin

S YOUR garden wakes from its winter slumber, you can feel overwhelmed by the tasks you need to carry out.

But while not everyone has the time to do them all, everyone has the time to do them all, whether it be work or family keeping life busy, we all deserve a beautiful plot. And, of course, there's a cheat's guide to achieving that.

So here are a few simple tips that will allow you to show off your Eden to its best, whatever its state:

EASY CARE PLANTS

OPT for easy-maintenance informal shrubs, such as hydrangea, viburnum, choisya, weigela, sarcococca and clump forming bamboos.

Shrubs can provide interest throughout the year, with their flowers, scent, berries and foliage colour.

Avoid lots of different perennials and roses which need extra care and instead choose grasses and bulbs.

instead choose grasses and bulbs.
Use good-looking ground-cover plants, such as hardy geranium, pulmonaria, epimedium, brunnera and pachysandra, which smother bare soil so weeds haven't a chance.

WEED WARS

DIG up weeds before they flower and set seed.

Use a fine grade of forest bark to suppress weed growth, preserve moisture around the roots of your plants and make things look neat and tidy in a flash.

INSTANT STARS

CONTAINER-GROWN plants depend on you for watering and feeding so get them in the ground instead, where Mother Earth will provide such services.

Cheat's spring clean

Grow plants that perform instantly – species that begin to grow at a rapid pace as soon as they are bedded in the soil.

The perfect examples are sweet pea and nasturtium, which will climb up a bamboo wigwam support or race up a fence clad with some netting to provide a grip.

They flower within weeks, bringing colour and scent to your plot.

PAINT A WALL

USE paint for an instant lift. Take inspiration from the cobalt blue of La Majorelle in Morocco or warm up a wall with some Mexican Pink. Use pots of colour, single hues or a clashing cacophony.

For a tasteful approach, try ranges from the likes of Farrow and Ball. For the DIY way, have your own masonry paint matched to a favourite shade at a home improvement shop.

ARTIFICIAL GRASS

TAKE a practical view. If the lawn isn't working due to football games or is too much in the shade, dig it up.

Or - even easier - get someone in to do it. Then have some artificial turf

Installing artificial roll-out grass does require the professionals to ensure your Wembley is level, has adequate drainage and remains weed-free. But artificial turf is a really sensible

But artificial turf is a really sensible solution to some difficult areas - or definite requirements for your outdoor space.

BRIGHT IDEAS

AFTER dark, you can hide a multitude of issues by using clever and creative lighting.

The ultimate for me is what I think of as fairground lights bare bulbs set along a length of cable, draped over your terrace space.

The warm white or selection of coloured bulbs create an instant welcoming atmosphere.

If that's a bit of a stretch, try outdoor candles, especially those that give out the delicious scent of citronella as these will keep the midges away.

Simple candles or night lights in jam jars hung from trees make great cheap garden lighting solutions too.

Also, plant some nightscented stock for that sensory extra magic.

Early potatoes should be earthed up as soon as green shoots appea

YOUR JOBS FOR THIS WEEK

- EARTH up early potatoes as soon as green shoots appear. By covering the stems you are encouraging new tubers to develop from them and you are also ensuring that tubers are not exposed to light which would turn them green.
- ROSES are starting to put out fresh foliage, so this is a key time to spray against mildew and blackspot and apply a
- slow-release organic fertiliser at the base for a healthy plant. Tie in climbing roses using figure-of-eight ties.
- MULCH around box hedging with a well rotted manure as it has surface roots which will absorb available nutrients. The stronger the plant, the more able it is to fight the dreaded box blight. Give it a light clip to keep in shape.
- MULCH around spring bulbs that have flowered. It will help keep in moisture and stop them drying out.
- KEEP bird baths and feeders topped up with water and seed to encourage birds into your garden.
- PUT up wigwams for climbers. Sweet peas are ready to be planted at the base.

ASK DIARMUID

I HAVE a large pink camellia shrub which is about 10ft tall and around 12 to 15 years old. Last year the leaves started to brown and subsequently fell off. This year, it's the same - but the leaves are also covered in a black powdery substance. I keep it watered if there is a dry spell and it flowered quite well but it did lose quite a lot of buds. Now some of the leafless twigs look to be turning black. What might this be and can it be treated without losing the bush altogether? Pam Jenkins

THE brown foliage Acould be a result of frost damage to juvenile foliage or leaf scorch in a heatwave. In either case, remove affected parts.

The black powder is sooty mould. This is a fungus that grows on the excretions of aphids and scale insects. You can clean it off with water, but really you want to prevent the pests that are feeding off your camellia.

Cushion scale insect is often the culprit - check the undersides of the leaves to see if there are any eggs or insects.

You can spray in June to break the cycle of these pests. Organic sprays are available if you don't like using chemicals.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

PHLOX DOUGLASII 'CRACKERJACK'

GRAVEL gardens and rockeries look wonderful in spring when alpines such as moss phlox burst into colourful bloom.

This evergreen perennial is covered in a riot of pink-red flowers in late spring. It's neat and compact growing to around 10cm high, forming a colorful mat. It likes a sunny, well-drained position. Keep it tidy with a light clip after flowering. It would also look at home in an alpine trough.

Thursday, April 27, 2017

By David Ward

T'S perhaps a little difficult for the average motorists to comprehend when a car maker claims that they have put more than 900 new parts into their latest model when, on the face of it, the car doesn't look that unfamiliar from the outgoing version.

But Toyota has done just that with their latest, third generation Yaris hatchback which competes in the supermini sector where Ford's Fiesta has dominated for years.

And the Yaris has one major advantage over all rivals in that it's the only one with a petrol-electric hybrid power train.

More drivers are now catching onto the idea of driving hybrid models because they see the advantages in terms of them being more eco-friendly, more economical to run yet still offering a decent enough road-going performance.

So confident are Toyota GB on this hybrid trend continuing to increase that they expect almost half of new Yaris sales here will be hybrid with interestingly over two-thirds being bought by private, retail buyers as against fleet purchasers.

This time around. Toyota has dropped the three-door version and also the previous 1.4-litre diesel and replacing the old 1.33-litre petrol engine is a new 1.5-litre 110bhp petrol engine while a revised three-cylinder 1.0-litre petrol model remains.

Just where the 900 new parts have gone are not too clear to the casual onlooker but the Yaris has certainly been 'smartened up' as we say with a stylish new front end, new headlights, grille and lower door mouldings whilst at the back there's a new tailgate, rear light clusters and

There's some nice, new bright but not gaudy body colours and clearly by sitting inside this new Yaris it's obvious far more thought and money has gone into the improved upholstery trim levels and dashboard layout and content.

There are six grades of trim with the entry-level Active, powered by the one-litre engine coming in at a highly competitive £12.495 and the cheapest hybrid version, also an Active grade but powered by the new 1.5-litre petrol engine and with CVT automatic transmission comes in at £15,995.

Moving up the grades next is the Icon, starting again with the 1.0-litre but with a five-speed manual gearbox, which comes in at £14,495 with the cheapest hybrid at this level costing £17,595

Moving yet further up the trim levels there's an Icon Tech starting at £15,045, then the Design trim level at £15,845, a Bi-Tone grade from £17,595 before the top of the range Excel

There are a total of 17 different models available which Toyota GB believe offers something for everyone and all age groups and again as with the outgoing model the standard equipment level of even the entry-level Active is impressive and beats most of its supermini rivals in this respect.

For example, as with all these latest Yaris models, it comes with what is called Toyota Safety Sense package on board that includes a pre-collision system, lane departure warning, automatic high beam. rain-sensing windscreen wipers, seven airbags and also electric front windows. Bluetooth.and a siz-speaker audio system.

Opt for any hybrid model and conditioning and projector headlamps as standard too.

Obviously the further up the grades the more standard equipment there is but even in the basic Active trim it's impressive where there is also a seven-inch infotainment screen on the dashboard for the driver to use with plenty of instant information although in full sunlight there appear to be a little too much glare.

In terms of interior passenger space the Yaris has always scored high marks and this latest model it's even better with improved legroom in the rear seats with better soft-touch and warmer feeling trim materials on the doors and dashboard making it feel not as the hard plastic as on the old car.

For a car in its class the Yaris has always come across as being spacious with comfortable and well supported seats and it's much the same now in this third generation and boot space of 286 litres is as before with the 60/40 split rear seats up and in use making for a decent amount of useful luggage space.

Driving the various variants of the new car and two improved aspects clearly stand out over the outgoing model in my view there is less road noise inside the cabin and less engine drone when accelerating.

The revised suspension, steering and other underneath mechanical changes have definitely made the car better and quieter to drive out on the road and whilst it's still perhaps not quite as fun to drive as say the latest Fiesta it now does this side of the job so much better making it a far more enjoyable car to drive.

The 1.5-litre powered hybrid is the one to go for because here again improvements make it quieter, more responsive on acceleration and drivers gain the benefit of the best in class emissions of from 75 g/km and according to Toyota a combined fuel consumption of over 85mpg.

This has the Continuously Variable Transmission (CVT for short) on board and criticism of its lack of response and whining noise when acceleration on the previous model has been considerably improved making it a far more refined, quieter and entertaining than previously.

The 1.0-litre 68bhp provides a gutsy performance although 0 to 62mph takes 15.3 seconds and it has a claimed top speed of 96mph, CO 99g/km with most independent retail buyers quite happy with it combined fuel consumption of 65.7mpg.

The new kid on the block is the 1.5-litre and with a six-speed manual gearbox on board, it gives a more sprightly performance with 0 to 62mph in 11 seconds and a combined fuel consumption return of 58 8mpg with CO2 of 109g/km on 15-inch wheels.

It's certainly more responsive and livelier than the outgoing 1.3-litre and is quiet and agile enough for those wanting a little bit more in terms of overall road-going performance.

Another big bonus for all Yaris models is that like across the whole of the Toyota model ranges they comes with an impressive warranty of five years/100,000 miles which again is a great boost to retail buvers

LOST DIAMOND RING

24/7 Advertising for private and trade

I lost in Bishops Stortford on the I lost in Bishops Stortford on the 9th of December an art deco ring which has huge sentimental value, i believe i found it in an antique shop in Sawbridgeworth recently but they sold this on Easter Saturday, if you bought a a ring on that Saturday i would be happy to reimbure you, the be happy to reimburse you, the ring has been passed through quite a few generations and I'm devastated that its lost.

Runners pound London's streets

Excellent times recorded by Harlow club's members

HARLOW Running Club fielded 13 competitors in the Virgin Money London Marathon on what was a great day for spectating, when the sun came out, though it was a little too warm for runners.

A record number crossed the start, with more than 39,487 completing the gruelling 26.2-mile journey from Blackheath to Westminster – making the 37th edition of the race the biggest in its history by 347 runners.

tory by 347 runners.
Several Harlow runners ran for charity, raising more than £8,000 for various charities including St Clares, MS Society, Accuro and Diabetes UK.

FINE DISPLAYS: Harlow Judo Club's Owen Lambert and Adam Pope

Judoka show Sheffield steel

TWO members of Harlow Judo Club have picked up medals at the British Schools Championships in Sheffield.

Owen Lambert, aged 11, and Adam Pope (21) took their places at prestigious and high standard event, which had a specific section dedicated to those with special needs.

However, to come away with a bronze medal was a very respectable result.

A HARLOW karate referee is back officiating on the world stage.

Nariman Jeddi, a seventh dan and chief instructor at Hanko Ryu Karate-Do, regained his World Refereeing qualification as he took part in the Karate Premier League Championship in Dubai.

He also refereed at the recent English National Championships in Leicester

Hawks finish in tenth spot

DESPITE completing their campaign with a disappointing 3-2 defeat at Leatherhead, Harlow Town have finished in an impressive tenth place in their first season back in the Ryman Premier.

Alex Read put the Hawks ahead from the penalty spot, before Kadell Daniel scored a fortunate goal for the hosts soon after the break. Captain Ibrahima Sonko Captain Ibrahima Sonko restored the lead, but once again Leatherhead equalised when Nana Boakye-Yiadom turned and finished neatly.

As the game looked like it was heading for a draw, Jerry Nnamani was in the right place at the right time to poke home a close finish and secure the win.

Fifth national title for schoolboy boxer

A YOUNG boxer from Harlow is rapidly making a name for himself after winning his fifth national title.

Sixteen-year-old Georgie Ellis, who lives in Old Harlow and attends Leventhorpe School, beat Patrick Lee (Platinum) on a split decision in Liverpool to be crowned U42kg England Junior champion.

Georgie, a southpaw, has previously won the England Schoolboys titles in 2014 and 2015, and also took the England Cadet and England Development belts in 2016.

The promising teenager first donned boxing gloves in 2013 as a member of Harlow BC, and then joined Bishop's Stortford BC, before he was spotted by someone from Repton BC – one of the top clubs in the country.

of the top clubs in the country. Initially he didn't impress, but after a few sessions the club recognised his potential and Georgie hasn't looked back since

At this year's championships Repton had 12 boxers, with ten, including Georgie, winning titles – a remarkable achievement.

He trains intensively three times a week at the east London club, an all the hard hours and dedication put in at the gym are continuing to reap rewards.

He is now targeting the England Youth Championships in 2018, and is hoping to reach Three Nations or ABA Championships standard.
